

NOTES ON EDUCATION.

The Province of Ontario has a teachers' superintendence fund.

The average attendance in the aided schools of England and Wales now amounts to rather less than one in nine of the population. The educational code of this year has a provision by which after fourteen years of age children shall no longer be chargeable to the parliamentary grant. It is held that by the age of thirteen, if properly taught, these children can pass through the six standards of the code and three stages of one or more of the specific subjects of the fourth schedule.

Mr. Jules Ferry, in his recent address on scholastic training, said that he was bidding a last farewell to Latin as a language for use. The study of it, as well of the Greek, had in the past been an invaluable means for the culture of the human mind; but the study of antiquity had degenerated into superstition and grammatical idiosyncrasy. Common sense and Greek must be returned to. Henceforth Latin and Greek will be studied, not for the sake of writing in those tongues, but merely to read the great classic productions, and glean from them all the wisdom which they contained.

St. Louis has 978 teachers in her public schools and 51,558 pupils. The employment of colored teachers in the colored schools has not only served to increase the number of pupils but has encouraged many young members of the race to qualify themselves for the profession. The entire number of children studying German in the city schools is 18,692—a decrease of 963 since last year. The decreases are attributed by 2,260 to the fact that the kindergartens are attended by 10,000 more children than ever. For pure culture address MOTHER'S HOME ACADEMY, Morrison, P. O., New York.
